As Simon Weston OBE, Falkland's Veteran, says in his Foreword:
*'Fascinating stories about our Servicemen and women...
....a very special little book which punches way above it's weight.
A marvellous read which I enjoyed immensely and strongly recommend'*

THE ROYAL BRITISH LEGION

...and one small Branch in Devon

With almost 400,000 members and 2,500 Branches and Clubs, the RBL is by far the largest UK Service charity. In 2011 more than 150,000 calls for help were answered.

But it is down at grass roots level that the real strength of the Legion lies - the men and women who make up the branches and clubs.

And you will meet them - right here in this book.

You will hear from members themselves, of when, where and how they served their country.

These are proud tales - stories that stir the imagination.

The sixty-five men and women in this book are from one small branch in Devon yet they have, between them, seen well over seven hundred years of service.

"Captures what serving in the Armed Forces really means... brings to life the whole meaning, purpose and importance of the RBL. Very interesting and informative".

Her Majesty's Lord Lieutenant of Devon.
Eric Dancer Esq. CBE, JP.

"A brilliant introduction to this charity... I recommend it to all those who care for those who fought for our Nation".

General Sir Peter de la Billiere.
GCB, CBE, DSO, MC*.

"A really readable short history of the Legion with some wonderful tales, inspirational and humbling. A truly excellent book".

Vice Admiral Peter Wilkinson, CB, CVO.
National President of the Royal British Legion.
